My husband went to school with James and knew his brother too. It was only later in life that he began to see him walking around town and i too got to meet him. We would quite often pick him up and take him where he needed to go. I didn't know him very well or for very long but I know he was filled with God' s spirit and full of God's word. James had the most beautiful smile and kind eyes. My husband and I were blessed through helping James because he shared with us a bit of wisdom or a word from God that he was given to stew over. That wisdom or word was meant for us too. James now has a permanent home, no need for a car or things of this world, just love. I know he will have all he needs being with his King of Kings.
